

Dr. Apostolos D. Mandrekas MD, PhD

Dr. Apostolos Mandrekas graduated from the Medical School of Aristotelion University of Thessaloniki, Greece in 1975, at the same time finishing the Military Medical Academy. He joined the Navy and served until his retirement in 1995 as Commodore. Dr. Mandrekas received his PhD in 1988 from the University of Athens, and was the founder and director of the Naval Hospital Plastic Surgery Clinic from 1986 to 1995, during which time he trained many novice plastic surgeons.

Dr. Mandrekas has published 7 books in Greek, and over 50 papers in international journals with more than 400 citations. He was a member of the International Editorial Board of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery Journal (PRS) for many years, and currently serves as a reviewer. Additionally, he is a member of the editorial board of Aesthetic Plastic Surgery (APS), Aesthetic Surgery Journal (ASJ), PRS Global Open and Mastology.

Dr. Mandrekas previously served as President of the Hellenic Society of Plastic, Reconstructive and Aesthetic Surgery (HESPRAS) from 2009-2013, also maintains membership in many international Societies (ISAPS, IPRAS, SIS, BMS). Dr. Mandrekas currently works with a team of plastic surgeons at his private plastic surgery practice, ARTION Plastic Surgery Center, where all aspects of Plastic, Reconstructive and Aesthetic Surgery are performed.